

Ocean 300's target is to change the continent of plastic that is currently floating in the oceans.

One mass of floating plastic has been called the "Great Pacific Garbage Patch," "The Plastic Ocean" and "The World's Biggest Garbage Dump." Ocean 300 asks, "How does it get any better than this?"

300 people will board a ship in 2011 and sail into the North Pacific plastic zone. Using an energy, Molecular Demanifestation (DMMD), they will invite all of that plastic to change and transform into elements that the ocean can handle and dissipate with ease.

This has never been done before and we hope it will create an awareness in the world of what else is possible, beyond what many have decided is not.

Ocean 300 will be providing information, videos and testimonials showing how to use DMMD to change and transform things. What if you could change a glass of wine into the most delicious, refreshing and nutritious treat for you body?
